A chance discovery in a laboratory may lead to an effective new treatment for solid cancers that are hard to reach and treat.

Prof Phil Hogg, Honorary Professor at University of Sydney, Faculty at Centenary Institute's ACRF Centenary Cancer Research Centre, was testing a new molecule. Instead of attaching to the protein, the molecule entered only the dead and dying tumour cells. Initially with Luminesce Alliance Innovation in Paediatric Precision Medicine seed funding, Prof Hogg and his team have been investigating whether they can use the dead cell-seeking powers to develop a new treatment approach using targeted radiation. Congratulations to MRFF grant winners Prof. Sue Woolfenden and team

University of Sydney's Prof. Sue Woolfenden, Katarina Ostojic, and their team of chief and associate investigators have been awarded a $1.5m MRFF Grant for Clinician Researchers - Applied Research for Equitable Pathways and Integrated Care in Cerebral Palsy (EPIC-CP). Luminesce Alliance is delighted to see that our initial support of Katarina Ostojic has progressed to further recognition of Prof Woolfenden, Katarina and the team's efforts to address the psychosocial risks of precision medicine and ensure its equitable rollout. In this grant, the team will conduct a randomised controlled trial, with economic and implementation evaluations of EPIC-CP.

How leaders unlock the power of collaboration

Collaboration is key to Luminesce Alliance effectiveness but not always easy to achieve. In this The Solutionists podcast with Mark Scott - The University of Sydney, Dr Kate Harrison Brennan reflects on practical ways to bring people together and Dr Richard Harris shares what the Thai cave rescue taught him about teamwork and trust. About | Register for updates

Luminesce Alliance is a joint venture between the Sydney Children's Hospitals Network, the Children's Medical Research Institute, the Children's Cancer Institute, UNSW Sydney and the University of Sydney. It has been established with the support of the NSW Government to coordinate and integrate paediatric precision medicine research.

Luminesce Alliance has made a significant impact in our first four years. Read more.
